Brought to you by the Purdue Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers

October 2005

Welcome to a new, wonderful year of ChE! The year is already under way, and classes aren't making it go any faster. First off, everyone needs to become a member of AIChE! Bring your form and money to the AIChE office in room 6a anytime during the day. There are a ton of cool events happening this year and I want everyone to enjoy the fun!

Proof that even Shakespeare Skipped Class!!

By : Kristen Schebler

To skip or not to skip--that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The yawns and boredom of attending class
Or rather to seek our own diversions
And, in finding them, rejoice! To go, to stay--
No doubt--and by this quandary say we end
The heartache and the thousand things we should be doing

In our college days--'tis a peace of mind
Devoutly sought by all. To go, to stay--
To stay perchance to nap. Ay, that's the thing,
For in that time of dodging class what dreams may be fulfilled,

When we have sidestepped life at last,
Must give us pause. Ought we to have gone
When sunlight washed the grassy lawn?
But who would bear the boredom of a lecture,
Th' puns of the professor, the attentiveness of students good,
The hunger pangs so prevalent in a luncheon class,
The pointlessness and sheer redundancy of notes
When he himself might his escape make good
By simply skipping class?

Who would homework bear,
To grunt and swear over impossible compositions,
But that the dread of C's to come,
That undiscovered country from whose clutches
No student may return, does chasten us
And makes us rather do the work we have Then toss it to the winds of fickle Fate?
Thus conscience makes cowards of us all
And thus the glory of a grand spring day
Is shadowed within the sinister walls of dingy lecture halls,
And plans of lazy drowsing 'neath the trees
With this realization are set so long aside
And lose their fine appeal. But still--
What joy is theirs who ditch today
And make amends tomorrow.
